

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

* * *

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION,

Case No. 2:11-CV-283 JCM (GWF)

Plaintiff(s),

ORDER

v.

IVY CAPITAL, INC., et al.,

Defendant(s).

Presently before the court is defendants Benjamin Hoskins, Dream Financial, and relief defendants Leanne Hoskins, Oxford Financial LLC, and Mowab, Inc.’s (collectively “movants”) motion for relief and/or modification of judgment and order for permanent injunction and monetary relief. (ECF No. 449). The Federal Trade Commission (the “FTC”) filed a response (ECF No. 454), to which movants replied (ECF No. 457).

Also before the court is the FTC’s motion to submit supplemental authority, (ECF No. 458), to which movants filed a response (ECF No. 459).¹

I. Background

This long-closed matter arises from the recent decision in AMG Capital Mgmt., LLC v. FTC, 141 S. Ct. 1341, 1345 (2021), where the Supreme Court held that section 13(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U. S. C. §53(b), does not authorize the FTC to seek, and a court to award, equitable monetary relief such as restitution or disgorgement.

In 2011, the FTC initiated this action against movants for their roles in a telemarketing scheme that defrauded consumers out of $130,375,057.52 in violation of section 5(a) of the FTC

¹ The court GRANTS the FTC’s motion. The issues discussed in the FTC’s proposed supplemental authority are relevant to this matter.

1 Act and several provisions of the Telemarketing Sales Rule. (ECF No. 1). In March 2013, this
 2 court granted summary judgment to the FTC, finding that movants “engaged in a complex scheme
 3 designed to cheat consumers out of millions of dollars through a bogus business coaching program
 4 and a variety of useless goods and services as add-ons to the program” (ECF No. 392 at 3).

5 This court held that defendants Benjamin Hoskins and Dream Financial were liable for full 6 restitution—$130,375,057.52—by virtue of Benjamin’s knowledge of the scheme and his
 7 ownership in Dream Financial. (ECF No. 392). This court further held that relief defendants
 8 Leanne Hoskins, Oxford Financial LLC, and Mowab, Inc. were independently liable for 9 $1,128,795.78, $1,529,292.25, and $203,118.40 respectively in disgorgement. (Id.).

10 Specifically, the court held that “Section 13(b) of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 53(b),
 11 authorizes a court to issue a permanent injunction whenever a defendant violates any of the laws
 12 enforced by the FTC and is likely to continue to violate such laws. . . . [and] Where, as here,
 13 consumers suffer economic injury resulting from the defendants’ violations of the FTC Act, equity
 14 requires monetary relief in the full amount lost by consumers.” (ECF No. 392 at 23, 25 (first citing
 15 FTC v. H. N. Singer, Inc., 668 F.2d 1107, 1112-13 (9th Cir. 1982), then citing FTC v. Stefanchik, 16 559 F.3d 924, 931 (9th Cir. 2009))).

17 Consistent with that order, this court entered judgment against movants on July 5, 2013.
 18 (ECF No. 409). Movants appealed this court’s decision, (ECF Nos. 402, 410), and gained a 19 favorable amended judgment holding relief defendants jointly and severally liable instead of 20 independently liable. (ECF Nos. 441, 444).

21 After that amended judgment was entered on January 6, 2016, this matter remained 22 dormant for over five years. Then, on April 22, 2021, the Supreme Court issued the AMG decision.
 23 Now, almost a decade after judgment was first entered and more than half a decade after litigation
 24 ceased, movants seek relief from the amended judgment under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
 25 60(b)(5) and (6).

26 . . .

27 . . .

28 II. Legal Standard

1 Rule 60(b) “provides for reconsideration [from a judgment] only upon a showing of (1)
 2 mistake, surprise, or excusable neglect; (2) newly discovered evidence; (3) fraud; (4) a void
 3 judgment; (5) a satisfied or discharged judgment; or (6) ‘extraordinary circumstances’ which 4 would justify relief.” Fuller v. M.G. Jewelry, 950 F.2d 1437, 1442 (9th Cir. 1991) (citing Backlund
 5 v. Barnhart, 778 F.2d 1386, 1388 (9th Cir. 1985)).

6 “A movant seeking relief under Rule 60(b)(6) must show ‘ “extraordinary circumstances”
 7 justifying the reopening of a final judgment.’ ” Henson, 943 F.3d at 443–44 (quoting Jones v.
 8 Ryan, 733 F.3d 825, 833 (9th Cir. 2013)). A change in law, alone, is not an extraordinary 9 circumstance. See Gonzalez, 545 U.S. at 536 (“It is hardly extraordinary that subsequently, after 10 petitioner’s case was no longer pending, this Court arrived at a different interpretation [of the 11 relevant statute].”).

12 The Ninth Circuit has distilled the extraordinary-circumstances requirement for change-of-
 13 law-based Rule 60(b)(6) motions into a non-exhaustive list of six factors, considered flexibly and 14 in their totality. Bynoe v. Baca, 966 F.3d 972, 983 (9th Cir. 2020). These factors include (1) the 15 nature of the legal change, including whether the change in law resolved an unsettled legal 16 question; (2) whether the movant exercised diligence in pursuing reconsideration of his or her 17 claim; (3) the parties’ reliance interests in the finality of the judgment; (4) the delay between the 18 finality of the judgment and the Rule 60(b)(6) motion; (5) the relationship between the change in 19 law and the challenged judgment; and (6) whether there are concerns of comity that would be 20 disturbed by reopening a case. Id. (citing Phelps v. Alameida, 569 F.3d 1120, 1134–40 (9th Cir.
 21 2009)).

22 Though those factors aid the court’s analysis, the context of this case—relief from an
 23 equitable monetary judgment for violation of the FTC act on the basis of a change in interpretation
 24 of law—is entirely new for purposes of a Rule 60(b)(6) motion. Thus, the court “assess[es] how 25 that different context might alter the calculus of the factors’ application, and whether those factors
 26 adequately capture all of the relevant circumstances.” Henson, 943 F.3d at 446.

27 III. Discussion

28

1 Movants argue that the equitable monetary relief portion of the judgment should be vacated
 2 in its entirety and that the relief defendants removed from the case entirely because the Supreme
 3 Court recently held that section 13(b) of the FTC Act does not provide courts with the authority to
 4 impose equitable monetary judgments. See AMG Capital Mgmt., LLC v. FTC, 141 S. Ct. 1341
 5 (2021).

6 Movants point to AMG, Publishers Business Services, Inc., et al. v. FTC, Case No. 2:08-
 7 cv-00620-PMP-PAL (D. Nev.), and FTC v. VPL Medical, Inc., 2021 WL 1664404 (9th Cir. 2021),
 8 as examples of similar cases that were automatically vacated after the AMG decision. However,
 9 unlike this matter, those cases were all still on direct appeal when AMG was decided.

10 While the Supreme Court’s controlling interpretation of federal law must be given full 11 retroactive effect in all cases still open on direct review and as to all events, regardless of whether 12 such events predate or postdate our announcement of the rule, Harper v. Va. Dept. of Taxation, 13 509 U.S. 86, 97 (1993), “[n]ew legal principles, even when applied retroactively, do not apply to 14 cases already closed.” Reynoldsville Casket Co. v. Hyde, 514 U.S. 749, 758, (1995) (citing United 15 States v. Estate of Donnelly, 397 U.S. 286, 296 (1970) (Harlan, J., concurring)); see also Teague
 16 v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288, 308 (1989) (“[I]t has long been established that a final civil judgment 17 entered under a given rule of law may withstand subsequent judicial change in that rule.”).

18 Here, unlike the parties in AMG, Publishers, and VPL, movants made the litigation choice 19 to argue the equitable merits of imposing a monetary judgment rather than attack the statutory 20 authority for that judgment. After movants took their arguments to the Ninth Circuit and gained 21 an amended judgment (ECF No. 446), they moved on without seeking a writ of certiorari or 22 otherwise appealing any other aspect of the judgment.

23 Thus, absent extraordinary circumstances, the AMG decision does not retroactively apply
 24 to movants’ case. See In re Pac. Far E. Lines, Inc., 889 F.2d 242, 250 (9th Cir. 1989) (“[W]here
 25 parties have made deliberate litigation choices, Rule 60(b)(6) should not provide a second
 26 chance.”); Ackermann v. United States, 340 U.S. 193, 198 (1950) (“Petitioner cannot be relieved 27 of such a choice [to not appeal] because hindsight seems to indicate to him that his decision [] was 28 probably wrong, considering the outcome of [another] case.”).

1 A. No extraordinary circumstances justify relief under Rule 60(b)(6)

2 Considering the relevant Rule 60(b)(6) factors, the court holds that no extraordinary
3 circumstances justify relief in this matter. The nature of the change in law, diligence in pursuing
4 relief, and reliance interest in finality all weigh against relief. The delay between final judgment
5 and this motion and the relationship between the judgment and the change in law both slightly
6 weigh in favor of relief. The additional considerations discussed by the parties weigh against 7 relief.

8 At bottom, this case was ten years old when AMG was decided. The judgment was first 9 entered in 2013 and—after slight amendment on instruction from the Ninth Circuit—has remained
10 untouched since 2016. (See ECF Nos. 409; 444; 446). The parties are entitled to rely on court
11 judgments and move on with their affairs. Reopening this case would be unfair to the FTC and 12 contrary to the goal of finality of judgments.²

13 B. Relief is not warranted under Rule 60(b)(5)

14 Contrary to movants’ arguments, Rule 60(b)(5) does not apply in this matter. The 15 judgment has not been satisfied, released, or discharged, nor was it based on an earlier judgment
16 that has been reversed or vacated. The equity referenced in Rule 60(b)(5) applies to prospective
17 injunctive relief, not the equitable monetary relief that movants challenge here. See Cal. by & 18 through Becerra v. U.S. EPA, 978 F.3d 708, 713–17 (9th Cir. 2020) (discussing Rule 60(b)(5) as 19 the standard for modifying an injunction “with prospective effect,” rather than “judgments that 20 offer a present remedy for a past wrong”).

21 ...

22 ...

23 ...

24 ...

25 IV. Conclusion

26 Accordingly,

27 _____

28 ² Consequently, the court denies movants’ requests to remove the relief defendants from the judgment and to return the funds previously taken. (ECF No. 449 at 9–10).

1 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that movants' motion for relief
2 and/or modification of judgment and order for permanent injunction and monetary relief (ECF No.
3 449), be, and the same hereby is, DENIED.

4 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that FTC's motion to submit supplemental authority (ECF
5 No. 458), be, and the same hereby is, GRANTED.

6 This matter shall remain closed, and the final judgment (ECF Nos. 409, 446) shall remain
7 in effect.

8 DATED March 9, 2022.

9
10 UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE